

McLean Project for the Arts

An Important Message from MPA

McLean Project for the Arts (MPA) condemns all acts of racial injustice and discrimination for any reason in our community and around the world.

The killing of George Floyd, the many others before him, and the events that have unfolded since have laid bare the continued existence of inequity and injustice in America. As we reflect on the pain and anguish this causes, we know that the arts can be a powerful and important instrument for support and healing. MPA is committed to building community through providing opportunities for all people to experience the arts, express themselves through art, see themselves in art, and learn about others and the wider world through art.

We affirm our commitment to be a place of community and dialogue for all, and we recognize that change must happen to make our society more just and equal. To be lasting, change must happen at every level of society and in every sphere, including the arts. We are committed to listening and engaging in this work, and we hope you will join us.

McLean Project for the Arts (MPA) is funded in part by the National Endowment for the Arts, the Virginia Commission for the Arts, and ArtsFairfax.
